the limited immediate global impact, increasing the number of countries that are engaged in economic development, and the potential for future economic growth, together with the fact that the world is becoming more integrated, the authors argue that the world is heading towards a period of sustained and high-speed economic growth, despite the uncertainties involved in the projections. The authors believe that high-speed economic growth is possible, but that this will require significant investment, increasing the gap between rich and poor.

It is pointed out that the world is still an extremely poor place. The United Nations Millennium Study estimates that 20 million more people are becoming severely malnourished, and that increasing numbers in South Asia and sub-Saharan Africa are still suffering from famine. The authors argue that the world is heading towards a period of sustained and high-speed economic growth, despite the uncertainties involved in the projections. Residual threats remain, says GMA

MANILA, Philippines — The GMA network and its stations are still under threat from the Islamic militant group Abu Sayyaf, a GMA spokesman said Tuesday.

The spokesman said the group has been targeting the network since it started broadcasting in the region in 2008. He said the group has been threatening to kill the network's staff and to destroy its stations.

The spokesman said the network has been forced to take security measures to protect its staff and stations. He said the network has been forced to hire private security guards and to install security cameras at its stations.

The spokesman said the network has been forced to take other security measures, such as limiting the number of staff who can travel to the region and to limit the number of stations that can broadcast from the region.

The spokesman said the network has been forced to take these measures because of the threat from the Islamic militant group Abu Sayyaf. He said the group has been threatening to kill the network's staff and to destroy its stations.

Come out, hazing witnesses dared

By Tere S. Guzman

MANILA (Inquirer) — A group of students at the University of the Philippines (UP) in Manila have dared hazing witnesses to come out and testify against the practice. The group, known as the UP Student Hazing Committee, has been active in exposing hazing incidents and has been successful in getting several students expelled. The committee has also been successful in getting the UP administration to take a hard line against hazing. BSP says peso still 'slightly undervalued'

UBS agrees peso's gains sustainable

By Don S. Santos

THE PHILIPPINE peso's recent gains are sustainable, according to a report by UBS Global Wealth Management, the Swiss bank's private banking division.

The report, titled "The Philippine peso: A sustainable recovery," says the peso's recovery from a low of 48.50 per US dollar in late 2003 is "well advanced" and "likely to continue."

It also notes that the peso's recovery is "supported by a number of factors, including the government's commitment to fiscal discipline, the central bank's prudent monetary policy, and the country's strong economic fundamentals."

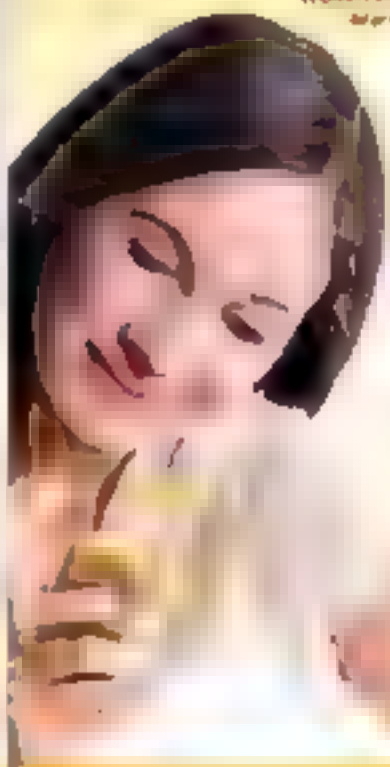

The report also mentions that the peso's recovery is "supported by the government's commitment to fiscal discipline, the central bank's prudent monetary policy, and the country's strong economic fundamentals."

Coal-to-fuels facility attracts investors

Manila, Philippines—A coal-to-liquids (CTL) plant in the Philippines is attracting investors, including a consortium of Japanese and Chinese companies, according to a report by the Philippine Department of Energy.

The report, dated March 10, 2008, states that the plant, which is located in the Zamboanga region, is expected to be completed by 2010. The plant will have a capacity of 1.5 million barrels of CTL per year.

The report also mentions that the plant will be a joint venture between a local company and a consortium of Japanese and Chinese companies. The local company is expected to provide the land and infrastructure, while the consortium will provide the technology and capital.

Further drop in banks' NPLs seen

Manila, Philippines

The Philippine Department of Finance (DOF) expects a further drop in the non-performing loans (NPLs) of banks in the country, according to a report by the DOF.

The report, dated March 10, 2008, states that the NPLs of banks in the Philippines have been declining steadily since 2005. The DOF expects this trend to continue in 2008.

The report also mentions that the DOF will continue to monitor the NPLs of banks in the Philippines and will take appropriate measures to ensure that the NPLs remain at a low level.

NTC clamps down on text 'spam'

Cell phone users claim they are billed for unwanted messages

By Dennis Garcia

MANILA, Sept. 14 (PNA) — The National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) has issued a new order to clamp down on text "spam" messages sent to cell phone users. The order, which took effect last week, requires all mobile network operators to implement measures to prevent the sending of unsolicited text messages to their subscribers.

The NTC said it received numerous complaints from cell phone users who claimed they were billed for unwanted text messages. The commission said it found that some mobile network operators were allowing third parties to send unsolicited text messages to their subscribers without their consent.

The new order requires all mobile network operators to implement measures to prevent the sending of unsolicited text messages to their subscribers. These measures include:

- Implementing a "do not disturb" (DND) system to prevent the sending of unsolicited text messages to subscribers who have opted out of receiving such messages.
- Implementing a "spam filter" to detect and block unsolicited text messages.
- Implementing a "spam reporting" system to allow subscribers to report unsolicited text messages to the NTC.

The NTC said it will impose fines on mobile network operators who fail to implement these measures. The fines will range from P50,000 to P100,000 per violation.

Land Bank secures P50-B loan to boost agri credit

By Marlene de Guzman

MANILA, Sept. 14 (PNA) — The Land Bank of the Philippines (LBP) has secured a P50-billion loan from the Asian Development Bank (ADB) to boost agricultural credit. The loan, which is the largest in the ADB's history, will be used to support the LBP's agricultural credit programs and to improve the infrastructure of the agricultural sector.

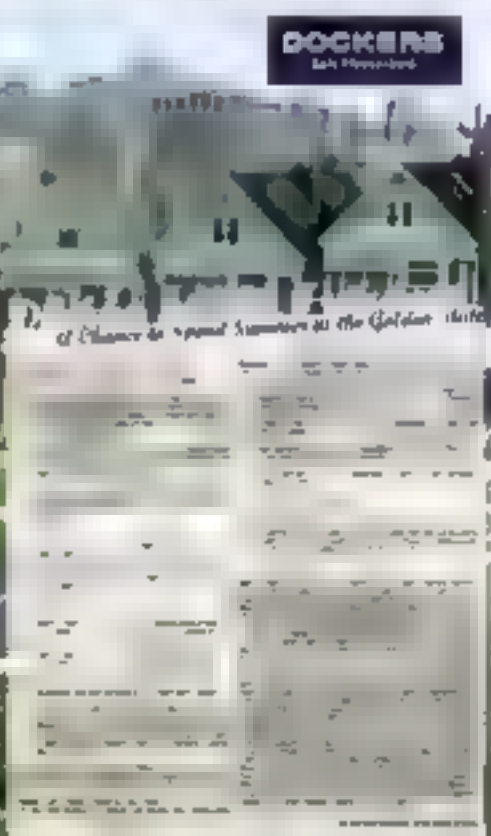

The LBP said it is pleased to have secured the loan, which will help it to expand its agricultural credit programs and to provide more financial support to farmers and agribusinesses. The loan will be used to support the LBP's agricultural credit programs and to improve the infrastructure of the agricultural sector.

The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable "Number of children" (Table 1). The independent variables are "Age", "Gender", "Marital status", "Education", "Income", and "Religion". The table includes the coefficient, standard error, t-statistic, and p-value for each variable. The overall F-statistic is 10.12, and the adjusted R-squared is 0.45.

Music in times of emergency

THE 1930s-1940s in the Philippines were a time of political crisis, social change, and economic hardship. The National Music Commission, established in 1935, played a crucial role in preserving and promoting Filipino music during this period. It was the first time in the Philippines that a government agency was dedicated to the study and promotion of the country's musical heritage. The commission's efforts were particularly significant in the context of the Japanese occupation during World War II, when many cultural institutions were destroyed and artists were persecuted.

One of the commission's early projects was the collection and documentation of traditional Filipino music. This included field recordings of folk songs, dances, and religious music from various regions across the country. The commission also organized music festivals and competitions to encourage the performance of traditional music. In addition, it published a series of books and pamphlets on Filipino music, providing a valuable resource for scholars and musicians alike. The commission's work laid the foundation for the modern study of Filipino music and helped to ensure that the country's rich musical heritage was not lost during the war.

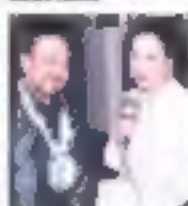

During the Japanese occupation, the commission's work continued in secret. It managed to preserve a large collection of musical manuscripts and recordings, which were hidden in various locations. The commission also organized underground music performances, providing a source of cultural resistance for the Filipino people. After the war, the commission's efforts were recognized, and it played a key role in the reconstruction of the Philippine music scene. Its collection of traditional music became a cornerstone of the National Music Commission's archive, and its publications remain important references for researchers in the field.

The National Music Commission was established in 1935 by Executive Order No. 100. Its primary mission was to study, collect, and promote the music of the Philippines. The commission was headed by a director and consisted of several members, including musicians, scholars, and government officials. It was the first time in the Philippines that a government agency was dedicated to the study and promotion of the country's musical heritage.

The commission's work was particularly significant during the Japanese occupation of the Philippines (1942-1945). Despite the challenges posed by the war, the commission managed to preserve a large collection of musical manuscripts and recordings, which were hidden in various locations. The commission also organized underground music performances, providing a source of cultural resistance for the Filipino people. After the war, the commission's efforts were recognized, and it played a key role in the reconstruction of the Philippine music scene.

Ballet Manila, a leading dance company in the Philippines, is holding a summer workshop for young dancers. The workshop, which is open to dancers aged 10 to 18, will run from July to September. It is designed to provide participants with intensive training in ballet technique, performance, and stagecraft. The workshop is led by experienced dancers and choreographers from Ballet Manila, and it includes a variety of activities, including classes, rehearsals, and performances. The goal of the workshop is to help young dancers develop their skills and passion for ballet, and to provide them with a valuable learning experience.

The workshop is a free of charge, and it is open to all young dancers who are interested in ballet. It is a great opportunity for young dancers to learn from experienced professionals and to gain valuable experience in a professional dance environment. The workshop is held at the Ballet Manila studio, and it includes a variety of activities, including classes, rehearsals, and performances. The goal of the workshop is to help young dancers develop their skills and passion for ballet, and to provide them with a valuable learning experience.
